Juliana Boudreaux was born in New Orleans in 1927. She attended local schools. In 1961 she was the first woman to receive a Ph.D. in History from Tulane University. She began her career with New Orleans Public School System in 1948 as a substitute teacher at William Frantz School. Later she became principal of Thomas Jefferson Elementary School and served in that capacity at Robert M. Lusher School. Subsequent appointments included director of elementary education and assistant superintendent for instruction and child advocacy. In 1968 she became the first woman in the OPSB system to serve as associate superintendent for Area II schools. She retired in 1987.

Correspondence, reports, photographs and studies which reflect her varied activities at New Orleans Public schools are included in the series.
